Authors
Lana Wells, Brenda Strafford Chair in the Prevention of Domestic Violence, University of Calgary, Faculty of Social Work
Janay Ferguson, Researcher
Interdepartmental Committee on Family Violence and Bullying, Government of Alberta

Contributors
Caroline Claussen, Researcher
Elizabeth Dozois, Researcher
Elena Esina, Researcher
Casey Boodt, Researcher
Liza Lorenzetti, Researcher

Suggested Citation

Contact
Lana Wells, Brenda Strafford Chair in the Prevention of Domestic Violence
2500 University Drive NW, Calgary, AB, Canada T2N 1N4
Phone: 403-220-6484 Email: lmwells@ucalgary.ca
2012 Shift: The Project to End Domestic Violence
www.preventdomesticviolence.ca
Table of Contents

Introduction ................................................................................................................................................. 3
Everyone has a role in family violence prevention ...................................................................................... 5
Our process .................................................................................................................................................. 7
Family violence trends ................................................................................................................................. 8
The issue ...................................................................................................................................................... 10
Incorporating a primary prevention approach ........................................................................................... 13
  Building on a solid foundation ................................................................................................................ 13
  Types of prevention .................................................................................................................................. 14
  Primary prevention models ..................................................................................................................... 14
A framework to end family violence in Alberta ......................................................................................... 17
  Strategic priority 1: Strengthen efforts to prevent family violence across the lifespan ............ 19
  Strategic priority 2: Enhance services and supports and the justice response for victims and offenders of family violence ................................................................................ 20
  Strategic priority 3: Collaborate with the community and support capacity-building activities centered on family violence prevention ................................................................. 23
  Strategic priority 4: Influence societal attitudes to promote non-violent norms ..................... 25
  Strategic priority 5: Evaluate, measure and demonstrate collective impact .................................. 26
Outcomes ....................................................................................................................................................... 27
Ending family violence in Alberta is going to take a collective effort ...................................................... 29
Appendix A: The community strengthened ............................................................................................... 30
Appendix B: Consultation themes ............................................................................................................... 32
Appendix C: Glossary .................................................................................................................................... 33
End notes ....................................................................................................................................................... 35
INTRODUCTION

Family violence hurts everyone—the children, women, men and families who experience violence, the witnesses and bystanders, as well as those who are responsible for committing the violence. Victims of abuse experience significant loss when their home—the one place they should feel safe and secure—is a place of danger. Family violence affects the physical, emotional, financial and spiritual health of children and adults, and shatters the sense of well-being needed to thrive in life.

Family violence is defined as “the abuse of power within relationships of family, trust or dependency that endangers the survival, security or well-being of another person. It can take many forms including spouse abuse, senior abuse and neglect, child abuse and neglect, child sexual abuse, parent abuse, and witnessing abuse of others in the family. Family violence may include some or all of the following behaviours: physical abuse, psychological abuse, criminal harassment/stalking, verbal abuse, sexual abuse, financial abuse, and spiritual abuse.”

Violence in the home affects a large portion of the population and crosses all demographic and cultural boundaries. Family violence is not just an individual, private or family matter; it is unquestionably a public concern. Family violence is a social issue, a criminal justice issue, a public health issue, and a human rights issue. The financial implications of family violence include heavy demands on the health care system, education and social services and judicial services. Most importantly, the human costs and impact are immeasurable. This is why the Government of Alberta continues to be committed to this issue and taking strong action against it.

The Government of Alberta made a commitment to Albertans in 1984 with the creation of the Interdepartmental Committee on Family Violence and renewed that commitment in 2004 with the Roundtable on Family Violence and Bullying. The Roundtable built on a foundation of effective practices already in place in Alberta to respond to family violence and bullying and provided a strategy with new dollars for continued action. Implementation of the strategy was guided by a common commitment for all government departments and community agencies to work together with individuals, families and communities to break the complex cycle of family violence.

Since the 2004 Roundtable, government and community partners have been working together to strengthen a coordinated community and justice response to family violence, including improved services for children and women who are victims of family violence, comprehensive treatment programs for offenders, enhanced support for immigrant and Aboriginal communities, safe visitation services for families in conflict, public awareness campaigns and educational materials along with a toll-free information line for Albertans experiencing family violence. Over the last eight years, additional resources were invested in the expansion of women’s shelters, programs targeting offenders (including the expansion of family violence courts and mandated treatment programs), the creation of the Integrated Threat and Risk Assessment Centre (ITRAC), specialized police units, and the strengthening of legislation.
including amendments to the Child, Youth and Family Enhancement Act and the Protection Against Family Violence Act. (For a detailed list of investments, please refer to Appendix A.)

Building on this solid foundation of intervention, treatment and protection measures, the Government of Alberta determined that the strategy needed to be redesigned to include a greater emphasis on primary prevention, to incorporate new and emergent research and to learn from other programs and policies that are making a difference around the world to stop violence before it starts. It was also decided that the issues of family violence and bullying would each have their own plan.

Family Violence Hurts Everyone: A Framework to End Family Violence in Alberta provides thoughtful, evidence-informed strategies for preventing and responding to family violence in Alberta. While all forms of family violence are unacceptable, the focus of this framework is primarily on: preventing intimate partner violence, stopping the transmission of violence to children, youth and young adults, and building healthy relationships across the lifespan.
EVERYONE HAS A ROLE IN FAMILY VIOLENCE PREVENTION

Large-scale social change requires broad cross-sector leadership, coordination, collaboration and engaged citizens. No single organization or sector is going to solve family violence. Everyone has a role in ending this complex social issue. Working together, we can change the rates of family violence and build and sustain healthy relationships throughout the province.

Role of individuals, families and neighbours
• Take personal responsibility for individual wellness and healthy relationships
• Be active bystanders to prevent and/or stop violence from occurring
• Be engaged citizens and stand up to end family violence in Alberta
• Support family, friends and neighbours to get help when they need it
• Stop the transmission of violence from one generation to the next

Role of formal and informal community leaders and community groups
• Improve community connections to reduce social isolation
• Value and support non-violent norms
• Help build respectful and equitable gender relations
• Take action to address violence within the community
• Inform, influence and lead community change

Role of service providers/non-government organizations
• Deliver front-line services and supports
• Share research and best practices to identify emerging trends
• Work with government to identify needs, issues and strategic directions
• Partner with academics to identify and implement promising practices that will support people to improve their interpersonal conflict resolution skills and stop intergenerational transmission of violence
• Lead, support and build community capacity to prevent family violence

Role of the private sector
• Value and promote respectful gender relations
• Support and implement family violence workplace policies and supports
• Provide leadership and modeling and safe work environments
• Engage and support employees in building healthy relationships
• Provide charitable and philanthropic giving
• Support employees to take a stand against family violence
Role of the Government of Alberta

• Establish a shared vision, provincial priorities and policy direction among all ministries
• Provide a legislative and policy framework and funding to support ending family violence
• Facilitate collaboration among individuals, families, communities and all sectors
• Support the provision of coordinated and integrated supports and services at the community level and a strong justice response
• Facilitate opportunities to mobilize knowledge between policy-makers, academics, practitioners and citizens
• Support innovative research and programming and measure and monitor the trends and impact of the framework and investments
OUR PROCESS

The concepts, priorities and strategies presented in this framework were developed through several methods:

1. Between March and September 2012, the Government of Alberta consulted with more than 200 individuals across Alberta, including community partners and government staff to understand: a) what is working among the programs and policies that currently exist; b) where are the gaps; and c) what are the recommendations on future priorities for the Government of Alberta. The themes that emerged from these consultations have been incorporated into this new strategic framework. (For a list of consultation themes, please see Appendix B. For detailed definitions of the terms used throughout this report, please see Appendix C.)

2. The Brenda Strafford Chair in the Prevention of Domestic Violence and Shift: The Project to End Domestic Violence team at the Faculty of Social Work, University of Calgary produced research briefs and reports supported by multiple funders to ground this new provincial framework in primary prevention. In addition, they reviewed 80 research and evaluation reports that were completed by and for the Government of Alberta between 2005 and 2012 during the implementation of the Alberta Roundtable on Family Violence and Bullying: Finding Solutions Together Strategy.

3. An internal scan on key Government of Alberta Initiatives and Frameworks to understand and identify intergovernmental strategies and outcomes that intersect to reduce family violence (e.g., Addiction and Mental Health Strategy, Crime Prevention Framework, Plan for Alberta: Ending Homelessness in 10 years, etc.).

4. Several field and content experts from government, the community and post-secondary institutions were consulted throughout the process.

5. Information from client surveys completed by more than one thousand women who have stayed in women’s shelters and families who have accessed community programs.

6. Key themes identified through the public consultations for the Government of Alberta’s Social Policy Framework and the community conversations completed by the Aboriginal Policy and Community Engagement Division of Human Services were also taken into consideration in the building of this framework.
FAMILY VIOLENCE TRENDS

Statistics for family violence have changed over the past 13 years. Self-reported spousal violence in Alberta has gone from 9.9 per cent in 1999 to 8.7 per cent in 2004 and 7.6 per cent in 2009. While this does reveal a downward trend, Alberta’s rate of self-reported spousal violence in 2009 was still significantly higher than the national average of 6.2 per cent.²

In addition:

• Alberta has the second highest rate of self-reported spousal violence in the country.³ In 2010, Alberta had the fifth highest rate of police-reported intimate partner violence.⁴

• Between, 2000-2010 - there were 121 victims of intimate partner homicides in Alberta.

• Nine per cent of Albertans find it acceptable in at least one situation to be physically violent towards their spouse (and this could be higher within individual communities).⁵

• Females continue to report more serious forms of spousal violence than males. For example, in 2009, females who reported spousal violence were about three times more likely than males (34 per cent versus 10 per cent) to report that they had been sexually assaulted, beaten, choked or threatened with a gun or a knife by their partner or ex-partner in the previous five years.⁶

• The prevalence of self-reported spousal violence in Alberta reveals that every hour of every day a woman will be a victim of some form of violence by an ex-spouse or ex-partner.⁷

• Aboriginal women were almost three times more likely than non-Aboriginal women to report they had been a victim of spousal abuse in the past five years.⁸

• According to the 2009 General Social Survey on Victimization:

  o Spousal victims were more likely than other victims to be first victimized as a child with 48 per cent of spousal victims reporting they were physically assaulted before the age of 15, and 75 per cent reporting that they were first sexually victimized as a child.⁹

  o Parents were responsible for more than half (59 per cent) of all family-related sexual offences and physical assaults against children and youth victims in 2009. For every 100,000 children and youth in Canada in 2009, 126 were physically or sexually assaulted by their parent.¹⁰

  o The youngest child victims (under the age of three years) are the most vulnerable to violence by a parent. In 2009, about eight in 10 victims (or 81 per cent) in this age group were assaulted by their parent. This compares to 60 per cent of three to 11 year-olds and 55 per cent of 12 to 17 year-olds.¹¹

  o Overall, police-reported data show that girls under the age of 18 were more likely than boys of the same age to be victims of family violence. This finding was due largely to victimizations involving sexual offences. In 2009, the rate of sexual offences by family members that came to the attention of police was four times higher for girls than boys (113 versus 28 per 100,000 children and youth population). Higher rates of sexual victimization against girls held true regardless of the victim’s age.\(^{12}\)

- In Canada, police-reported data indicates that dating partner violence was more prevalent than spousal violence. In fact:
  - Young people aged 12 to 14 represented about one per cent of all dating partner violence with a rate of 56 victims per 100,000 population.
  - Those aged 15 to 24 had a rate of 520 victims per 100,000.
  - Those aged 25 to 34 had a rate of 739 per 100,000.\(^{13}\)

- Over half (51 per cent) of victims of intimate partner violence suffered injuries,\(^{14}\) suggesting that in addition to the trauma to the victim, intimate partner violence continues to be a significant burden on the health care system.

- Intimate partner violence was more likely than non-intimate partner violence to result in charges being laid or recommended,\(^{15}\) suggesting a high cost and ongoing burden for policing services and the criminal justice system.

- Overall, close to seven in 10 victims of spousal violence turned to informal sources of support, such as family, friends, neighbours, co-workers, doctors and spiritual advisors. In 2009, close to three in 10 victims (28 per cent) reported contacting or using a formal service, such as a counsellor or psychologist, to help them deal with the violence.\(^{16}\)

- The senior population had the lowest risk of violence compared to any other age group, irrespective of whether the incident involved a family member or someone outside the family.\(^{17}\) However, seniors were most at risk from friends or acquaintances (73 victims per 100,000 seniors), followed by family members (61 victims per 100,000) and strangers (51 victims per 100,000). Grown children were most often identified as the perpetrator of family violence against seniors.\(^{18}\)

- In Canada, women with disabilities most frequently experience victimization from an intimate partner or spouse, family member or caregiver, approximately 40% of these women will be assaulted, sexually assaulted or abused throughout in their lives.
THE ISSUE

Family Violence is Complex
It is difficult to obtain a complete picture of the extent of family violence in Alberta because it often remains hidden. Victims experience isolation, shame, embarrassment and humiliation. Victims may stay in abusive relationships because they are afraid that the violence may escalate if they leave, or they are committed to making the relationship work, or they do not have the finances to leave, or because friends and family may not support their decision to leave. In some cases, if victims leave, they are abandoned, ignored and harassed by their extended family and their community because they have challenged their community norms and brought perceived shame and dishonour to the family and community. Leaving can be difficult and complicated—and for many people who do flee a violent relationship, it doesn’t necessarily mean the violence stops, in some cases it escalates. Adding to the complexity, gender inequality, income disparity between genders, expected gender roles in parenting and marriage, marginalization of racialized and ethno cultural groups, sexism and discrimination are all factors that contribute to family violence.

Family Violence is Pervasive
In Canada, over 1.14 million people reported they had been either physically or sexually assaulted by their partner or spouse in the last five years. The percentage for Alberta was 7.6 per cent self-reported (8.7 per cent for women, 6.5 per cent for men). This equates to just over 74,000 Albertans who reported having been either physically or sexually abused by a spouse or partner in the past five years. In addition, for those that have an ex-spouse or partner, self-reported family violence is estimated at 17.4 per cent. In 2009, there were 45,837 women who indicated they had experienced one or more incidents of physical or sexual violence in the past five years by the hands of their ex-spouse or ex-partner. This means that in every hour of every day, a woman in Alberta is abused by her ex-partner or ex-spouse.

Results from the 2009 GSS Victimization Survey indicate that between 2004 and 2009 there was an increase in the proportion of spousal violence victims reporting that children heard or saw assaults on them (from 43 per cent to 52 per cent of spousal victims with children). Parents were almost four times more likely to involve the police when a child witnessed the incident of spousal violence than when children were not present during the spousal violence incident (39 per cent versus 10 per cent).

Family Violence is Costly
In addition to the devastating human cost, it is estimated that the cost of addressing family violence in Canada is in the billions. Annually, the Government of Alberta spends $65 million on crisis services, including women’s shelters, sexual assault services, mandated treatment programs, counselling, bullying prevention programs and collaborative community response programs and services. This amount does not include funds spent on justice, police services, child intervention services or general health services for those in a family violence situation. A recent report estimates that addressing family violence for women after they have fled an abusive situation has cost Albertans more than $600 million over the past five years. This is a conservative estimate, as it pertains to the residual costs, not the current costs. Plus, it does not include budgets associated with repeated police responses to deal with ongoing violence, medical services sought, legal and court costs, lost time at work, and the negative effects that witnessing family violence has on children.\textsuperscript{26}

Family Violence is Preventable

There are evidence-based programs and policies that can stop family violence from happening in the first place, by promoting and creating healthy relationships, healthy norms, healthy communities and healthy families. Research shows that most of the precursors of family violence occur in childhood and adolescence. Children and youth learn relationship skills and social behaviours from their parents and other family members. A high proportion of children who witness or experience violent relationships in childhood go on to perpetuate these patterns in adulthood with their own children and partners. If we want to prevent violence before it starts, we must focus our efforts on children, youth and at-risk young adults, especially those who are or may soon become parents. The second focus for prevention of family violence is building non-violent and healthy socio-cultural norms and environments as research shows they often determine and enforce appropriate and inappropriate behaviours.

Risk and Protective Factors for Family Violence

Understanding who is likely to experience family violence and who is likely to perpetrate it allows practitioners, researchers and policy-makers to better understand how to develop and implement prevention activities. Risk factors for family violence are defined as an attribute or exposure that increases the probability of family violence. These can exist for those at risk of perpetrating violence as well as those at risk of being a victim of violence. The following table is based on research and findings outlined in the Preventing Intimate Partner and Sexual Violence Against Women report; risk factors with the strongest reported effect are indicated with an asterisk.\textsuperscript{27}

Risk Factors

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Characteristics of Perpetration</th>
<th>Characteristics of Victimization</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Individual Level</td>
<td>Individual Level</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Demographics</td>
<td>Demographics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Young age</td>
<td>• Gender (being a woman)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Low socio-economic status</td>
<td>• Low socio-economic status</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Unemployment</td>
<td>• Pregnancy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exposure to child maltreatment</td>
<td>• Age</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Sexual abuse*</td>
<td>• Member of a socially excluded group</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Other</td>
<td>Exposure to child maltreatment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Low self-esteem</td>
<td>• Sexual abuse*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Impulsivity</td>
<td>• Physical abuse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Attachment style</td>
<td>Other</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Alcohol consumption and</td>
<td>• Impulsivity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dependence</td>
<td>• Consumption and dependence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>• Low self-esteem</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prior history of being abused*</td>
<td>Exposure to prior abuse/victimization*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------------------</td>
<td>--------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Relationship Level</th>
<th>Relationship Level</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Educational disparity</td>
<td>Educational disparity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sexual possessiveness</td>
<td>Number of children</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relationship quality</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Gender role disputes</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Marital duration</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Community Level</th>
<th>Community Level</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Neighbourhood characteristics</td>
<td>Neighbourhood characteristics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- High proportion of poverty</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- High proportion of unemployment</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- High proportion of male illiteracy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- High proportion of households that use corporal punishment</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Societal Level</th>
<th>Societal Level</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>None provided</td>
<td>Divorce regulations by government*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Lack of legislation on intimate partner violence within marriage*</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Protective marriage laws*</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Protective Factors to Prevent Family Violence

Protective factors also play a role in the context of family violence. Generally, protective factors are those that influence the ability of an individual to develop positively, despite harmful environments and experiences.\(^\text{28}\) Some identified protective factors include:

- Being employed\(^\text{29}\)
- Having an annual income over $50,000\(^\text{30}\)
- Positive academic achievement\(^\text{31}\)
- Being actively involved and connected to schools\(^\text{32}\)
- Having strong links with supportive adults\(^\text{33}\)
- Belonging to an association with strong sanctions against violence\(^\text{34}\)
- Living within an extended family\(^\text{35}\)
- Being formally married\(^\text{36}\)
- Being over the age of 65\(^\text{37}\)
- Experiencing positive parenting that includes “parental encouragement and support, and non-coercive rule-setting and monitoring”\(^\text{38 39 40}\)

Where possible, protective factors need to be fostered, which may be through structural and other interventions such as promoting gender equality, reducing poverty, building Albertans’ connections and social networks, and promoting positive parenting. It is about identifying the factors that place people at risk of perpetrating and/or experiencing family violence, and working to eliminate those risk factors; while at the same time building protective factors and resilience and creating the social conditions for people to build and sustain healthy relationships.

INCORPORATING A PRIMARY PREVENTION APPROACH

BUILDING ON A SOLID FOUNDATION

Community agencies throughout Alberta have made significant contributions to addressing family violence through advocacy and support to families, providing emergency shelter for women and children, outreach services, coordinated collaborative services, training opportunities across disciplines, research and supporting emerging trends. The Government of Alberta has invested in a comprehensive continuum of services to respond to the devastating impacts of family violence and will continue to invest in strengthening these services.

Continuum of Support and Services Supported by the Government of Alberta

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Awareness</th>
<th>Prevention</th>
<th>Intervention</th>
<th>Outreach</th>
<th>Enforcement</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Family violence info line</td>
<td>Supports to parents: Home Visitation, Triple P Parenting; Parent Link Centres</td>
<td>Counselling and treatment for victims and Offenders</td>
<td>Safe Visitation Initiatives</td>
<td>Domestic violence courts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Family violence prevention month</td>
<td>Childcare supports in women’s shelters</td>
<td>Coordinated Collaborative Response Model</td>
<td>Victim Support Outreach</td>
<td>Integrated Threat and Risk Assessment Centre (I-TRAC)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Media campaigns</td>
<td>Health screening programs</td>
<td>Family Justice Services</td>
<td>Outreach workers at Women’s Shelters</td>
<td>Specialized police units and prosecutors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Websites</td>
<td>Enhanced curriculum of school-based programs</td>
<td>Community Engagement Framework</td>
<td>Community Elder Abuse Prevention Coordinator</td>
<td>Screening and assessment tools</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Printed material</td>
<td>Family Violence and Bullying 101 training</td>
<td>Support to Sexual Assault Centres</td>
<td>Provincial Elder Abuse Coordinator</td>
<td>Domestic violence police guidelines</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conferences/workshops</td>
<td>Elder Abuse Training for Service Providers</td>
<td>Elder Abuse and Offenders Coordinators</td>
<td></td>
<td>Close supervision and enforcement of court orders</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Public opinion survey on Alberta’s perception of Family Violence and Bullying</td>
<td>Housing supports</td>
<td>Protection Against Family Violence Act</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
As in most jurisdictions around the world, the bulk of this effort has been aimed at victims and their families, and at efforts to prevent violence from re-occurring. In adding a primary prevention approach to address family violence, the focus of this framework is to take action to prevent problems before they occur the first time. It also requires moving the focus of investments from individuals to entire populations and communities.

TYPES OF PREVENTION

Primary Prevention
Primary prevention explicitly focuses on action before the condition of concern develops. In the area of family violence, it means reducing the number of new instances of violence by intervening before any violence has occurred. Interventions can be delivered to the whole population or to particular groups that are at high risk of using or experiencing violence in the future. Primary prevention programs are often delivered to large groups in order to reach a cohort within a short time frame. Examples include: whole-school approaches to building healthy relationships skills; home visitation programs that target first-time moms and parents; and social marketing campaigns that encourage bystanders to step in to stop the violence.

Secondary Prevention
In the realm of family violence, secondary prevention refers to attempts to detect situations where violence is already occurring, but doing so earlier than it might otherwise have been identified. For example, immediate responses to those accessing pre-hospital care or emergency services, before the violence results in hospitalization or police intervention. Secondary prevention also refers to efforts to prevent further acts from occurring once violence has been identified. It is often referred to as “early intervention.”

Tertiary Prevention
Tertiary prevention involves providing support and treatment to those already affected by family violence, as well as interventions to reduce the impact of violence once it has been reported. For victims, this includes such strategies as counselling and health care responses, while for the offenders it includes offender treatment programs and other judicial responses. The focus here is on reducing the harmful consequences of an act of violence after it has occurred, and on long-term care in the wake of violence, for example, rehabilitation and reintegration to reduce long-term trauma.

While primary prevention strategies are often unique, it must be stressed that it is not always possible to make clear distinctions between the three types of prevention, and often a robust primary prevention framework will contain elements of secondary or tertiary strategies to ensure a comprehensive continuum. The Government of Alberta is committed to supporting the full continuum of prevention.

PRIMARY PREVENTION MODELS

Family Violence Hurts Everyone: A Framework to End Family Violence in Alberta demonstrates how to collectively prevent and significantly reduce family violence using a comprehensive... an approach where everyone is part of the solution. This approach is based on applying both the Ecological Model and Spectrum of Prevention to building the framework.

The Ecological Model
The Ecological Model proposes that family violence is the result of interactions between factors at a range of levels.\(^{50} \text{51} \text{52}\) It also suggests that creating an environment conducive to change is important to making it easier for people to adopt healthy behaviours. The levels of interaction where change needs to be supported are depicted in the following graphic:\(^{53}\)

- Individual—knowledge, attitude, skills and personal history
- Interpersonal and Relationship—household dynamics, circumstances and social networks
- Organizational—environment, workplace, ethos
- Community—culture and values; physical and demographic features of an area in which people live, communities of interest
- Societal—cultural norms, structures and processes, laws and policies

The Spectrum of Prevention
The Spectrum of Prevention is a model used for building primary prevention strategies. It is a six-level tool that can help in the advancement of government and community solutions to prevent family violence. At its essence is the belief that a single individual or sector cannot address the problem alone and that activities must take place in tandem to get at complex social issues.\(^{54}\) The new Family Violence Framework incorporates strategies at each level of the spectrum.

Submitted to the Government of Alberta November 2012
Six Levels of the Spectrum of Prevention

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Levels of the Spectrum</th>
<th>Description*</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Strengthening individual knowledge and skills</td>
<td>Enhancing an individual’s capability and skills in non-violent means of resolving interpersonal conflict and preventing injury, crime and violence.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Promoting community education</td>
<td>Reaching groups of people with information and resources in order to promote healthy relationships and equitable gender norms.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Educating service providers and practitioners</td>
<td>Informing providers who will transmit skills and knowledge to others to disrupt and stop the violence.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fostering coalitions and networks</td>
<td>Bringing together groups and individuals for broader goals and greater impact and to influence healthy social and community norms.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Changing organizational practices</td>
<td>Adopting regulations and norms to improve health and safety and provide leadership in diverse settings to support healthy relationships.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Influencing policy and legislation</td>
<td>Developing strategies to change laws and policies in order to influence outcomes in social services, health, education and justice that support gender equity, reduce poverty and provide a strong social safety net for those who are vulnerable.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*Please note for the purposes of this framework the description section is customized to align with family violence.

The Government of Alberta is committed to supporting the full continuum of prevention while building on a solid foundation of services that is currently in place to address family violence.
A FRAMEWORK TO END FAMILY VIOLENCE IN ALBERTA

This strategic framework is committed to strengthening and building on the current continuum of intervention, treatment and protection services to address family violence. The framework builds on this solid foundation and incorporates the key themes identified through the consultations with community partners and government staff. It also places a strong focus on investing in primary prevention—preventing the violence before it happens by focusing on the prevention of intimate partner violence; stopping the transmission of violence to children, youth and young adults; and building healthy relationships across the lifespan.

Prevention of family violence includes more than strategies that stop violence; we need to be equally focused on giving children and youth the knowledge and skills to develop respectful and healthy relationships throughout their lifetime. Healthy individual and interpersonal relationships are the basis of a strong and safe community. The majority of these skills are learned and reinforced in the home, school and the community. Maintaining a healthy relationship takes time, energy and care—but it is well worth it.

A critical area for stopping the cycle of family violence is providing a comprehensive continuum of services to identify those at risk and getting them the right support at the right time; and to prevent the violence from occurring again. A comprehensive approach that includes awareness, prevention, intervention, outreach and enforcement activities will ensure that whatever stage the family is at, there are supports available to them.

Alberta is a leader in addressing family violence and will continue to lead through Family Violence Hurts Everyone: A Framework to End Family Violence in Alberta. This framework takes the next step. It builds on new research and what has been learned from programs and policies that are making a difference here in Alberta and around the world. This Framework outlines the Government of Alberta’s priorities over the next five years. Our focus is on primary prevention, enhancing provincial policy, legislation and investments, applying a whole-government approach, engaging leadership from all sectors, improving service coordination so that it is client-centred, and engaging all Alberta’s to be active in ending family violence.

Vision
An Alberta where children, women, men and families are free from family violence.

Mission
To prevent and reduce the incidence and prevalence of family violence and ensure that Albertans have the supports they require to build and maintain healthy relationships.
Guiding Principles

The Framework is grounded in the following principles:

- Safety in the Home: The safety of Albertans affected by family violence is paramount.
- Focus on Primary Prevention: Emphasis is placed on primary prevention strategies that target both high-risk groups and the population at large.
- Human Rights Perspective: Family violence is a fundamental violation of human rights and is unacceptable in any form.
- Collaboration: Prevention, intervention and protection services are jointly planned and are delivered in partnership with communities and families.
- Evidence-Informed: Strategies are grounded in evidence with an emphasis on the monitoring and evaluation of implementation efforts.
- Client-Centered Services: The client is directly involved in all aspects of decision-making, needs-identification and service provision.
- Gender-Based Approach: Policies, programs and initiatives are assessed based on gender in order to respond to the different situations and experiences of women, men, boys and girls.
- Lifespan Perspective: The causes, consequences and prevention of family violence are viewed from a lifespan perspective, which recognizes the need for prevention and intervention at all stages of life.
- Culturally Appropriate: Attitudes, norms and diverse social realities are considered in the planning, delivery and implementation of research, policy and practices.
- Shared Responsibility: Responsibility for ending family violence is shared among all sectors and all Albertans.
- Whole Government Approach: A whole government approach is a collective effort of all ministries to prevent, reduce and end family violence.

Strategic Priorities

There are five key strategic priorities outlined in the Framework.

1. Strengthen efforts to prevent family violence across the lifespan.
2. Enhance services and supports and the justice response for victims and offenders of family violence.
3. Collaborate with the community and support capacity-building activities centered on family violence prevention.
4. Influence societal attitudes to promote non-violent norms.
5. Evaluate, measure and demonstrate collective impact.

The priorities contain strategies that are intended to impact individuals, families, the community and society at large. They acknowledge the complexity and interactive nature of risk and protective factors that can influence and prevent violent behaviour and vulnerability to violence. They have also been designed to leverage the important work already underway both with the Government of Alberta and in the community.
STRATEGIC PRIORITY 1: STRENGTHEN EFFORTS TO PREVENT FAMILY VIOLENCE ACROSS THE LIFESPAN

“Prevention can best be conceptualized as a continuum: preventing abuse from happening in the first place; intervening in a crisis to prevent the continuance of abuse; and treatment or rehabilitation to prevent recurrence of abusive behaviour.”

Naturally, this continuum takes place across the lifespan, from children experiencing and/or witnessing abuse, to teens in first dating relationships, to adults as partners, parents and grandparents. Strengthening efforts to prevent family violence across the lifespan is critical to preventing and reducing rates of family violence.

A focus within this priority is children, youth and young adults because children who are abused and children who witness the abuse of a parent (which often occur in tandem) are at risk of significant, long-term emotional problems, along with a range of behavioural problems including violence toward others in childhood and adolescence, abusive behaviours toward their own children in adulthood, and abuse of and/or victimization by dating and marriage partners. Being a child witness to family violence impacts the ability to have healthy relationships. Experiences of violence in the home teach children that violence is an acceptable, even normal, part of parenting and intimate relationships, which impacts how they relate to their families and influences future relationships. A critical strategy to end violence in the home is working with parents and families to build healthy relationships and families.

Goal
Prevent families from experiencing violence through evidence-informed programs and supports.

Strategies
• In alignment with the Alberta Approach to Early Childhood Development Strategy that focuses on enhancing parenting resources - develop a provincial parenting strategy that: invests in long-term nurse support for first-time mothers; expands evidence-based positive parenting programs; and promotes non-physical forms of discipline.

• Provide support to programs that focus on teen mothers and promote positive fathering programs for teen fathers and new parents.

• Enhance Alberta’s home visitation program to incorporate a strong focus on preventing family violence through screening and building healthy intimate and parenting relationships.

• Work closely with emergent Family Care Clinics to ensure medical staff, social workers and other professionals are trained in trauma sensitive practices and incorporate mandatory screening for family violence.

• Incorporate family violence prevention in Family Justice Services programs and supports. For example, parenting after separation and high conflict programs for parents.
• To prevent children’s exposure to family violence - partner with the Addiction and Mental Health Strategy to support parents who are experiencing mental health issues.

Goal
Promote gender equality, respect and healthy relationships.

Strategies
• Develop and support a comprehensive provincial strategy to engage men and boys in family violence prevention that is focused on engaging men in healthy relationships and involved fatherhood, and engaging boys and young men in healthy peer and intimate relationships.

• Adopt a whole-school and community approach to improve children and young people’s healthy relationship skills, social and emotional intelligence, and sexual health using evidence-informed programs and policies.

• Pilot an evidence-informed education program promoting gender equality and healthy relationships tailored to young people in post-secondary school settings.

• In partnership with youth-serving community agencies, support a strategic coordinated approach to provide healthy relationship skills to youth and at-risk youth.

• Apply a gender-based analysis to identify solutions for preventing family violence throughout all programs, strategies and initiatives funded by the Government of Alberta.

• Support sport and recreation groups, associations and clubs to promote violence prevention and healthy relationships.

• Support healthy dating and cohabitating relationships across the lifespan.

• Ensure prevention and intervention services for gender and sexually diverse people are provided in a safe, responsive and appropriate manner.

Goal
• Prevent older adults and seniors from experiencing elder abuse.

Strategies
• Continue to implement and support Addressing Elder Abuse in Alberta: A Strategy for Collective Action, the Alberta government’s plan to prevent and address elder abuse.

STRATEGIC PRIORITY 2: ENHANCE SERVICES AND SUPPORTS AND THE JUSTICE RESPONSE FOR VICTIMS AND OFFENDERS OF FAMILY VIOLENCE

Many studies have identified contextual factors related to housing, poverty and employment as key issues preventing victims of family violence from leaving their abusive partners. Helping parents who are victims of family violence to become independent from their abusive partners... is an important strategy in preventing children’s exposure to family violence and its consequences. Over the last eight years, Alberta has built a robust continuum of crisis intervention services across the province. Women’s shelters, sexual assault services, counselling services, coordinated justice response programs, family violence networks and treatment programs have supported many Albertans to reduce and stop the cycle of family violence. The recent consultations identified areas that require enhanced support to strengthen these services and long-term supports for victims and offenders of family violence.

Goal

Improve the provision of basic needs, housing, education and employment supports for victims experiencing family violence.

Strategies

- Support a continuum of comprehensive government and community outreach services to women and children experiencing family violence.

- Ensure all individuals and families fleeing family violence have access to safe and affordable housing options with wrap-around supports.

- Provide victims of family violence with increased coordinated support to navigate programs and services so their specific needs are met.

- Improve financial, education and employment assistance for victims of family violence to support economically sustainable, independent lives.

- Support access to coordinated, accredited language translation and interpretation services across government and the community in order to provide services to all victims and offenders of family violence.

Goal

Maintain and enhance an effective justice response to family violence.

Strategies

- Support the justice system to increase coordination between criminal and family courts by improving information-sharing within and between the criminal and civil systems.

- Provide victims of family violence with increased support to navigate the legal system and access to legal advice and representation.

- Facilitate appropriate and consistent family violence training, incorporating emerging issues, to front-line responders, service providers, lawyers and judges within the justice system.
• Continue the development and implementation of risk management and safety management strategies to assist with effective and appropriate criminal justice response for victims and offenders.

• Continue to advance the Integrated Threat and Risk Assessment Centre (I-TRAC) through educating police services regarding the role of I-TRAC and referral processes.

• Support and continue the work of the Family Violence Police Advisory Committee in raising issues related to enforcement and protection of victims in order to ensure a consistent response across police services.

• Continue to support Community Corrections in their evidence-based practices that enhance the ability to identify and support victims and offenders of family violence.

• Continue to work with Federal-Provincial-Territorial committees in addressing family violence issues.

• Continue to fast-track family violence criminal court proceedings through established Domestic Violence Courts.

Goal
Enhance screening, counselling and intervention support for victims and offenders of family violence.

Strategies
• Strengthen core, provincial screening practices and protocols within Alberta Health Services and Child Intervention Services to ensure that individuals experiencing family violence are identified and provided with specialized services.

• Ensure front-line service providers, child intervention workers, educators, health-care providers, police and child-care professionals are trained in trauma-informed assessment practices and approaches to working with children who are exposed to or experience family violence.

• Improve access and availability of counselling services for adults experiencing family violence as well as children exposed to or experiencing family violence.

• Continue to support evidence-informed mandated treatment programs for offenders.

Goal
Increase information sharing between systems working on preventing and responding to family violence.

Strategies
• Review legislation, policy and practices related to information sharing within and between government and service agencies to enhance services and supports and increase accountability and transparency to better serve Albertans.

• Support professionals at the local level to coordinate and share information that supports stronger services to respond to and prevent family violence.

STRATEGIC PRIORITY 3: COLLABORATE WITH THE COMMUNITY AND SUPPORT CAPACITY-BUILDING ACTIVITIES CENTERED ON FAMILY VIOLENCE PREVENTION

Complex social issues are never solved by one organization working in isolation. Long-term solutions require participation from public and private entities working in partnership with communities. Not only is it important to have participation from both public and private organizations interested in the issue, it is critical to engage a broad spectrum of stakeholders working across disciplines such as health, justice, social services and education. This helps ensure that efforts are integrated as opposed to silo-ed. By expanding the reach beyond the usual partners, the ability to mobilize a larger network in family violence prevention is possible. Building the capacity of partners (whether it be individuals, organizations or communities) to participate in prevention efforts is essential, as they can then influence healthier community norms and behaviours.

Goal
Increase the collective ability of professional and community-based organizations and cross-sector leaders to take action to prevent family violence.

Strategies

• Support local leadership and networks in rural and remote communities to prevent and respond to family violence by investing in local family violence prevention plans.

• Design a provincial workplace strategy to prevent family violence by working with a cross-section of Alberta employers, government and family violence experts.

• Work with educators and teachers to understand trauma and the impact of childhood exposure to or experience of family violence to ensure appropriate care is provided for children and youth in school settings.

• Work with community networks and post-secondary schools and researchers to host conferences, think tanks and knowledge mobilization events throughout Alberta to build the capacity of academics, practitioners and communities to advance a family violence strategy in Alberta.

• Implement ongoing provincial family violence training for government workers, agencies working with children and youth, community-based agencies working in family violence and first responders.
• Provide ongoing specialized training to child intervention workers on the Protection Against Family Violence Act, family violence, impact of trauma on children who witness or are exposed to family violence.

• Provide training to students in professional faculties in post-secondary schools on family violence, the impact of childhood trauma, and healthy interpersonal skills including social workers, nurses, teachers, lawyers, and psychologists.

• Provide specialized training to ensure a pool of qualified practitioners of family violence treatment services.

• Initiate and invest in a tri-partnership (university/government/community) task group to develop a joint research agenda on preventing family violence, moving research to action, and building promising and best practices throughout Alberta.

Goal
Increase professional and community capacity to work with targeted communities to reduce and prevent family violence, working at all levels of prevention including primary, secondary and tertiary (treatment services).

Strategies
• Work in partnership with Aboriginal peoples and communities to develop comprehensive, customized and community-led family violence prevention plans.

• Design a primary prevention strategy specifically targeted at girls and young women.

• Support ethno cultural and faith-based organizations to develop and implement family violence prevention plans.

• Support immigrant and refugee service providers and networks to enhance their family violence prevention efforts.

• Work closely with community agencies and experts in the field of disabilities to assist in the prevention of family violence by fostering collaborative planning and service coordination for individuals with disabilities and their families.

• Convene community partners, relevant government ministries and other experts in the field of sexual violence and sexual health to develop a sexual violence and health action plan for Alberta.

• Create an alliance with key stakeholders, academics and community leaders to develop a gender and sexual diversity plan to prevent family violence.
STRATEGIC PRIORITY 4: INFLUENCE SOCIETAL ATTITUDES TO PROMOTE NON-VIOLENT NORMS

Family violence is rooted in social and cultural norms. Cultural and social norms are defined as rules or expectations of behaviour within a specific cultural or social group. The link between socio-cultural norms, attitudes and behaviours is strong and research has shown an association between cultural acceptance of violence and increased risk for all types of interpersonal violence. Social and cultural norms shape behaviour and are therefore critical elements of any large-scale change effort.64

The media exert a powerful influence on our norms65 and, therefore, influencing media messages is a key strategy in family violence prevention. Further research suggests policy, legislation, communications and social marketing campaigns can also impact social norms and behaviours, thereby helping to prevent family violence.66

Goal
Cultivate non-violent social norms through targeted media and marketing strategies.

Strategies
• Develop a multi-layered, integrated social marketing framework designed to create an environment that supports individuals and populations to change unhealthy relationship behaviours.

• Provide resources to community-level organizations to support complementary social marketing campaigns at the local level.

• Work directly with the news media and train family violence prevention community advocates to promote non-violent norms throughout all forms of media.

• Annually, recognize Albertans who lead and demonstrate a commitment to ending family violence in their communities.

Goal
Align policy and legislation to support family violence prevention.

Strategies
• Complete an internal review of all relevant policies, regulations and legislation that impacts family violence to identify existing measures that promote and strengthen family violence prevention, as well as recommendations from the gaps identified.

• In consultation with key stakeholders, conduct annual reviews of the Protection Against Family Violence Act and formally evaluate the act on a five-year cycle.

• Establish policies promoting non-physical forms of discipline of children in all government-funded programs.

Submitted to the Government of Alberta November 2012
• Complete a retrospective study of family violence-related homicides and suicides in Alberta and use results to inform policy, systems change and practices.

• Establish a formal family violence death review committee to make ongoing recommendations for practice, policy and legislation enhancements on an annual basis.

STRATEGIC PRIORITY 5: EVALUATE, MEASURE AND DEMONSTRATE COLLECTIVE IMPACT

The Government of Alberta does not have a standardized and reliable system to collect family violence-related data. Lack of consistent information about the number of women, men and children affected by family violence contributes to an inability to gauge the magnitude of family violence in relation to other health problems. It also limits the ability to identify the most at-risk populations that might benefit from focused interventions or increased service provision, and hinders the ability to monitor the incidence and prevalence of family violence. This, in turn, restricts the potential to monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of prevention and intervention strategies.

Lack of accurate data about the prevalence, incidence and causes of family violence has limited the nature and scope of prevention initiatives. This is intensified by a lack of quality evaluation data. Prevention of family violence requires a sound understanding of what works, when and for whom.

Goal
Establish a comprehensive evaluation system that will monitor rates of family violence, monitor and evaluate the implementation and impact of the new framework, and design an outcome data collection strategy with funded programs and strategies.

Strategies
• Develop and invest in a comprehensive data collection system to more accurately track the prevalence of family violence across Alberta.

• Develop an integrated outcomes-based management and accountability framework to evaluate impact of the investments, interventions and monitoring of the framework.

• Develop measures to assess the progress of individual projects, programs and of the overall plan, and report back to Albertans every two years.

• Continue to administer the Albertans’ Perceptions of Family Violence and Bullying survey and use the results to help inform policy, legislation and program decisions.

• Support community agencies to use continuous improvement processes and to report back on the impact of their programs on three-year funding cycles.

• Support organizations, community-based groups and academics to conduct research and evaluate interventions and promising practices.

OUTCOMES

The following outcomes* are the anticipated results associated with the implementation of Family Violence Hurts Everyone: A Framework to End Family Violence in Alberta.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Short-Term Outcomes (1-5 years)</th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Individual/relationship</td>
<td>Organizational</td>
<td>Community</td>
<td>Societal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Improved connections to resources and support</td>
<td>• Model, promote and facilitate equal, respectful and non-violent gender relations</td>
<td>• Value and support norms which are non-violent and build respectful and equitable gender relations</td>
<td>• A society in which there are strong legislative and regulatory frameworks and appropriate resource allocation for supporting:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Respectful and equitable gender relations</td>
<td>• Work in partnerships across sectors to address violence</td>
<td>• Build connections between people and between them and sources of formal and informal support</td>
<td>• Gender equity</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Improved attitudes toward gender equity, gender roles and violence/violence against women</td>
<td>• Implement evidence-informed violence prevention activities</td>
<td>• Take action to address violence</td>
<td>• The prevention and prohibition of violence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Responsible alcohol use</td>
<td>• Ensure activities are accessible to and safe and supportive for women</td>
<td></td>
<td>• The positive portrayal of women and men (e.g., in advertising)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| | | | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Long-Term Outcomes (5-10 years)</td>
<td>Individual/relationship</td>
<td>Organizational</td>
<td>Community</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Reduction in violence-related mortality</td>
<td>• Violence prevention resources and activities integrated across sectors and settings</td>
<td>• Communities that value gender equity and respectful relationships between men and women</td>
<td>• Reduced gender inequality</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Improved interpersonal skills and family and gender relations</td>
<td>• Organizations that value and promote respectful gender relations</td>
<td>• Reduced social isolation and improved community connections</td>
<td>• Improved quality of life for men and women</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Reduced intergenerational transmission of violence and its impacts</td>
<td>• Improved access to resources and systems of support</td>
<td></td>
<td>• Reduced levels of violence/violence against women</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*The Government of Alberta would like to thank VicHealth and the State of Victoria for their publication “Preventing Violence Before it Occurs: A framework and background paper to guide the prevention of violence against women in Victoria” as the outcomes were extrapolated from this report.

Submitted to the Government of Alberta November 2012
Alberta is committed to monitoring changes in the outcomes stated above (and in Appendix D) which include rates and severity of family violence, incidents of family violence and changes in tolerance towards family violence. Moving forward in this process, an implementation plan and accountability structure will be developed and a commitment made to report back to Albertans every two years.
ENDING FAMILY VIOLENCE IN ALBERTA IS GOING TO TAKE A COLLECTIVE EFFORT

Everyone deserves to be free from family violence and able to experience healthy relationships that are the foundation of vibrant lives. This is the vision that has guided the Government of Alberta for more than two decades as it works with partners in the community to put an end to family violence. Family violence hurts everyone and is, therefore, a top public priority.

Family Violence Hurts Everyone: A Framework to End Family Violence in Alberta will be guided by the Social Policy Framework and strengthened by adopting a whole-government approach. This means working in partnership to align with other government initiatives, such as: An Alberta Approach to Early Childhood Development; Information Sharing Strategy; Plan to End Child Poverty; A Plan For Alberta: Ending Homelessness in 10 Years; Addressing Elder Abuse in Alberta: A Strategy for Collective Action; Creating Connections: Alberta’s Addiction and Mental Health Strategy; Alberta Crime Prevention Framework; Promoting Healthy Relationship and Preventing Bullying Strategy, Results-Based Budgeting and implementation of the Family Care Clinics.

The Government of Alberta will also seek future partnerships with the private sector, formal and informal community leaders and community groups to better coordinate sectors to get underneath this complex social issue. We need leadership in all sectors and in all communities to facilitate the implementation of community-based approaches to family violence prevention; to engage the private sector and key Albertans in a violence prevention agenda.

Over the next five years, the Government of Alberta will continue to support and invest in our community partners to deliver critical services to victims and perpetrators and families so we can stop the cycle of family violence. We have made tremendous strides over the past two decades to deal with family violence and have built a solid foundation through innovative legislation, crisis intervention, legal and police response, and community cooperation and coordination. Now is the time to take the next step to focus on preventing family violence from happening in the first place. Family violence hurts everyone; by working together, we can end family violence in Alberta.
APPENDIX A: THE COMMUNITY STRENGTHENED

Community agencies throughout Alberta have made significant contributions to addressing family violence through advocacy and support to families, operation of women’s emergency shelters, outreach services, coordinated collaborative responses, training opportunities, research, etc. There are numerous examples of actions at the community level that have built a solid foundation for intervention and protection services. Listed below are some key investments and improvements made by the Government of Alberta since 2004.

• Amendments to the Protection Against Family Violence Act (PAFVA) in 2006 and 2011 improved protection for victims, including mandatory penalties for violations of protection orders that are among the strongest in Canada.
• Family violence policies included in the proclamation of the 2004 Child, Youth and Family Enhancement Act, identifying the impacts and strategies in dealing with children exposed to family violence.
• Alberta Justice’s Family Law Strategy: the court must take into consideration the best interests of the child in the Family Law Act if there are any family violence issues.
• Addressing Elder Abuse in Alberta: A Strategy for Collective Action includes: actions to improve awareness of elder abuse, including financial abuse; the development and implementation of elder abuse-specific training for service providers; and support for communities to enhance coordinated community response to elder abuse, including effective intervention.
• Screening tools developed to assist with effective responses from community responders, including the Family Violence Investigation Report (FVIR) used by the police and the Screening Aid for Family Violence (SAFV) used by Human Services Child Intervention caseworkers.
• Domestic Violence Police Guidelines and the Domestic Violence Handbook were developed to provide the basis for consistent practices for police services and Crown prosecutors.
• The Integrated Threat and Risk Assessment Centre (I-TRAC), the first unit of its kind in Canada, was established to coordinate the efforts of a multi-disciplinary team of experts to reduce and prevent fear, suffering, violence and deaths that occur in high-risk relationship, violence and stalking cases.
• Family violence programs throughout the province received funding from the following Government of Alberta grant programs: Community Incentive Fund; the Safe Communities Innovation Fund; Victims of Crime Fund; Civil Forfeiture Fund; Community Initiatives Program; and Community Facility Entrance Program.
• Operating funding to 29 women’s emergency shelter programs has increased by 80 per cent over the last eight years.
• Supported 276 innovative child care spaces in women’s shelters to increase support for quality child care for families receiving services from women’s shelters.
• Funded nine sexual assault centres and their provincial association to offer services to victims of sexual violence in the context of family violence.
• Seven safe visitation programs have been established throughout the province to provide a safe environment for children to visit with a non-custodial parent in situations of on-going family violence.
• Eight Victim’s Supports Outreach sites provide specialized services to Aboriginal and immigrant families experiencing family violence.
• Collaborative Community Responses (CCR) were funded throughout Alberta to promote a local continuum of services including prevention, intervention, support and follow-up for families experiencing violence.
• Provincial Family Violence Treatment programs were established to provide an approach coordinated with Probation and Justice, including: eight domestic violence courts, specialized prosecution and court services; mandated offender treatment; supervision and enforcement of court orders; and community coordination and victim supports.
• Albertans fleeing abuse are offered financial supports through Alberta Works. The emergency allowance, along with specialized supports, allows individuals and families to get to safety, set up a household and start a new life.
• Funding to the affordable housing partnership initiative and provincial homelessness initiative, which has provided housing for many victims of family violence.
• Established Regional Family Violence and Bullying Coordinators in each of the 10 Child and Family Services Authorities to work with communities in taking action against family violence at the local level.
• A Family Violence Info Line is available 24/7, toll-free in Alberta, which provides services in more than 170 languages.
• Hosted the World Conference on Prevention of Family Violence, the International Policy Forum and continue to support the annual Diverse Voices Conference in Edmonton that brings researchers, community-based organizations, policy-makers and citizens together.
• Family Violence and Bullying 101, a cross-sector training program, was designed to increase knowledge on family violence, facilitate knowledge transfer and increase skills with practitioners dealing with family violence.
• To support the community to engage in family violence prevention activities, the Government of Alberta designed the Community Engagement Framework: A Strategic Framework and Guide with the goal to increase community capacity for action on family violence and bullying.
• Over 100 publications on understanding family violence, breaking the cycle of family violence and community resources are available free of charge to Albertans and in 12 languages at www.familyviolence.alberta.ca.
• A public opinion survey of Albertans’ Perceptions of Family Violence and Bullying is administered biannually to inform policy and program decisions.
• Family Violence Prevention Month (FVPM) is proclaimed each November and materials and events are offered throughout the province.
APPENDIX B: CONSULTATION THEMES

Consultations with Government of Alberta staff, community partners and stakeholders were held to inform the future directions for Family Violence Hurts Everyone: A Framework to End Family Violence in Alberta. The key themes that emerged from the consultations were:

- Family violence is a complex issue—services must be flexible and consider the needs of all members of the family
- Prevention—need to invest in prevention strategies while maintaining investments in current intervention strategies
- Coordinated, community-based models—continue to provide resources and support to local family violence prevention plans and invest in coordinating bodies
- Knowledge mobilization is essential—training on Family Violence 101, advanced family violence, cultural competency in services, translating research to practice and practice-driving research
- Sustained public awareness campaigns—focus messaging on “family violence is preventable” and “help is available”
- Counselling and treatment—invest in client-centred, family-focused services for victims, children and offenders, including trauma-focused practice
- Support and education for parents—focus on programs like home visitation, Parent Link Centres, and evidenced-based programs like Triple P-Positive Parenting Program
- Greater focus on children—expand and support programming for children who experience and/or are exposed to family violence
- Dating violence—ensure sufficient healthy relationship education and programs for teenagers, particularly for those at risk, are offered throughout the province
- Engage men and boys in family violence prevention—men need to feel valued and supported to model and coach boys to respect women and girls and themselves
- Aboriginal peoples—support Aboriginal communities to lead and deliver services
- Immigrant and refugee populations—ensure appropriate translation and interpretation services, and community-based, culture-specific supports and leadership are available
- Better information sharing—among sectors and specifically between family court and criminal court
- Improved legal supports—improve access to legal aid services and provide system navigators for better and responsive services to victims
- Housing—continued and new investments in emergency, second-stage and affordable, accessible, permanent housing for individuals and families fleeing violence
- Data systems and evaluations—gather pertinent data to identify prevalence, assess effectiveness of programs and strategies, and develop an outcome-based accountability framework
APPENDIX C: GLOSSARY

Domestic Violence: “The attempt, act or intent of someone within a relationship, where the relationship is characterized by intimacy, dependency or trust, to intimidate either by threat or by the use of physical force on another person or property. The purpose of the abuse is to control and/or exploit through neglect, intimidation, inducement of fear or by inflicting pain. Abusive behaviour can take many forms including: verbal, physical, sexual, psychological, emotional, spiritual and economic, and the violation of rights. All forms of abusive behaviour are ways in which one human being is trying to have control and/or exploit or have power over another.” 70

Ethno Cultural: “Shares characteristics that are unique to, and recognized by, the group. Characteristics may include: cultural traditions; ancestry; language; national identity; country of origin; or physical traits. A group may have its origins in many countries or link its distinct identity to a geographic region within a country. Religion may also be a defining characteristic because, in some cases, it may be completely tied into a group’s racial or cultural identity.” 71

Evidence-based: The term “evidence-based” was first developed in the sphere of medicine and was defined as the “integration of best research evidence with clinical expertise and patient values.” 72 In the context of social programs, services and supports, “evidence-based” refers to the use of high-quality evidence (e.g., randomized controlled trials) to develop, test and modify programs and services so that they are achieving the outcomes they are intended to achieve.

Evidence-informed: “Evidence-Informed Practice (EIP) is an approach to program or service delivery in which service providers, program implementers and program planners are aware of the evidence relevant to our practice or program initiatives, and apply that knowledge within the scope of our work.” 73

Family Violence: “The abuse of power within relationships of family, trust or dependency that endangers the survival, security or well-being of another person. It can take many forms including spouse abuse, senior abuse and neglect, child abuse and neglect, child sexual abuse, parent abuse, and witnessing abuse of others in the family. Family violence may include some or all of the following behaviours: physical abuse; psychological abuse; criminal harassment/stalking; verbal abuse; sexual abuse; financial abuse; and spiritual abuse.” 74

Gender and Sexually Diverse people “are those persons who constitute a minority population due to differences in their sexual orientations and/or gender identities. Groups characterized as sexual minorities across sex, sexual and gender differences include lesbians, gay men, bisexuals, transsexuals, intersexuals, transgendered, and Two-Spirit Aboriginals. Section 15 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms protects sexual minorities against discrimination in Canadian culture and society.” 75

Healthy Relationships: Those that “consist of a connection between people that increases well-being, is mutually enjoyable and enhances or maintains each individual’s positive self-concept.” 76
Immigrant: “Persons residing in Canada who were born outside of Canada, excluding temporary foreign workers, Canadian citizens born outside Canada and those with student or working visas.”

Intimate Partners: Opposite-sex or same-sex partners in “current and former dating relationships, current and former common-law relationships, current and former married relationships, and persons who are the parents of one or more children, regardless of their marital status or whether they have lived together at any time.”

Primary Prevention: Primary prevention in this context means reducing the number of new instances of family violence by intervening before any violence has occurred. Primary prevention “relies on identification of the underlying, or ‘upstream,’ risk and protective factors for intimate-partner violence and/or sexual violence, and action to address those factors.”

Promising Practices: “A ‘promising model’ is defined as one with at least preliminary evidence of effectiveness in small-scale interventions or for which there is potential for generating data that will be useful for making decisions about taking the intervention to scale and generalizing the results to diverse populations and settings.”

Refugee: “A person who is outside his or her country of nationality or habitual residence; has a well-founded fear of being persecuted because of his or her race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion; and is unable or unwilling to avail him- or herself of the protection of that country, or to return there, for fear of persecution.”

Trauma-informed care: an approach to engaging people with histories of trauma that recognizes the presence of trauma symptoms and acknowledges the role that trauma has played in their lives.
END NOTES

Submitted to the Government of Alberta November 2012
Submitted to the Government of Alberta November 2012

Jeffrey L. Edleson, “Primary Prevention and Adult Domestic Violence” (paper presented at the meeting of the Collaborative Violence Prevention Institute, San Francisco, February 17-18, 2000).

Brent Moloughney, Effectiveness of Primary Prevention Interventions for Domestic Violence (Canada: D Force Health Protection, Department of National Defense, 2007).

Alison Harvey, Claudia Garcia-Moreno and Alexander Butchart, Primary prevention of intimate-partner violence and sexual violence: Background paper for WHO expert meeting May 47 Brent Moloughney, Effectiveness of Primary Prevention Interventions for Domestic Violence (Canada: D Force Health Protection, Department of National Defense, 2007).

51 Jeffrey L. Edleson, “Primary Prevention and Adult Domestic Violence” (paper presented at the meeting of the Collaborative Violence Prevention Institute, San Francisco, February 17-18, 2000).

57 VicHealth, Preventing Violence Before It Occurs: A framework and background paper to guide the primary prevention of violence against women in Victoria (Melbourne, VIC: VicHealth, Submitted to the Government of Alberta November 2012}.
Gender and Sexually Diverse people represents the LGBQITT communities. This acronym refers to Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Queer/Questioning, Inter-sexed, Transgender, and Two-Spirited. This report attempts to be inclusive of all groups of people who identify themselves as being gender and sexually diverse. At this time, Gender and Sexually Diverse communities have not definitively agreed on an acronym or a term to use to refer to themselves.

Linda E. Saltzmann et al., Intimate Partner Violence Surveillance: Uniform Definitions and Recommended Data Elements Version 1.0 (Atlanta: National Centre for Injury Prevention and Control, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 1999, revised in 2002),
68 Lana M. Wells, “Domestic and Sexual Violence Summary of Preliminary Research Findings”
69 VicHealth, Preventing Violence Before It Occurs: A framework and background paper to guide the primary prevention of violence against women in Victoria (Melbourne, VIC: VicHealth, 2007),
70 Calgary Domestic Violence Collective, CDVC Guiding Document 2012-2013 (unpublished document, Calgary, AB, CDVC, 2012), 2.
71 Canada Revenue Agency, Charitable Work and Ethnocultural Groups – Information on registering as a charity (CRA, 2008), last modified February 22, 2011, http://www.cra-canada.gc.ca/chrts-gvnt/chrts/plcy/thn-eng.html#N102F8, chap. 4.
72 Institute of Medicine, Crossing the quality chasm: A new health system for the 21st
73 Jen Quinlan and Gillian Kranias, eds., Evidence-Informed Practice Workbook, 2d ed. (Toronto,
ON: Unison Community Health Planners Office, 2010),
74 Government of Alberta, Taking Action on Family Violence and Bullying: Report to Albertans
2008 (Edmonton, AB: Government of Alberta, 2008),
75 “Institute for Sexual Minority Studies and Services,” last modified 2010, accessed June 15,
76 Alaska Network on Domestic Violence & Sexual Assault, Pathways to Prevent Domestic Violence: A Plan for Alaska 2010-2016 (Juneau, AK: ANDVSA: 2010),
78 Alberta Justice Communications, Domestic violence handbook for police and crown prosecutors in Alberta (Edmonton, AB: AJC, 2010), 79 Alison Harvey, Claudia Garcia-Moreno and Alexander Butchart, Primary prevention of intimate-partner violence and sexual violence: Background paper for WHO expert meeting May 80 Frank Fuentes, “Department of Health and Human Services Administration for Children and Families, Program Announcement No. ACYF-PA-CCB-2003-02,” Federal Register 68, no. 131 (July
81 United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, The 1951 Convention relating to the status